

Arm guard to protect from kicks

Task Description: Milking

Comments of the employee:

✓

Comments of the employer: motivation regarding solution:

MSD risks:

Exposed areas:

Solutions:

- Milkers generally seem to prefer to attach clusters from behind rather than from the side. Where parlour design demands a side approach, the milker could protect his/her forearm by wearing a protective guard.

[I hope to be able to get a photo of one of these in the next couple of days.]